Town Wide Yard Sale

Saturday May 17th
8:30am–3pm

Oxford's Town Wide Yard Sale is back!

If you want to participate as a vendor, please fill out the registration form on the Town Website Recreation Page or Pinned to the top of our Facebook Page OR fill out a paper copy at the Town Hall.

If you want to participate as a shopper, watch for updates to the list of sales on social media and posted in places like the Post Office, Library and others.

Timeline:

8:30am–3pm: Yard Sales are open for business
– open until 3pm or until their stuff is gone!

12pm–2pm: Free barbecue at the Gazebo beside the Town Hall and Live Music provided by Abbey and Kaden! Come enjoy a free hot dog and some epic music to bolster your yard sale shopping stamina!

It promises to be a great day of community and shopping fun!

Mayor's Corner

Books books and more books!! Growing up I sailed the seven seas with Robert Louis Stevenson, travelled to the moon with Tom Swift, explored the old west with Louis L'Amour, explored the jungles of Africa with Lord Greystoke, drifted down the Mississippi with Huck Finn and discovered a boat that would not float with Farley Mowett.

As I got older, through the medium of the written word, I experienced the Halifax Explosion, the horrors of war and the devastation of Hiroshima. I read stories of both human cruelty and great kindness. Vonnegut, Irving, Callaghan, Bradbury, Clarke, Steinbeck, Hemingway illuminated the world outside my front door. Tolkien showed the value of fellowship. When life got hectic, there was Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance.

With the fair weather coming and folks out and moving around once more, taking in the sunshine and getting those muscles working after a winter lull, let's not forget to exercise our brains and our imagination.

Check out the Oxford Library and discover some written treasures!
